FAMILY EDUCATIONAL RIGHTS AND PRIVACY ACT RELEASE OF INFORMATION REQUEST/AUTHORIZATION

What is FERPA ?

FERPA is the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, originally enacted by Congress in 1974. The statute applies to any educational agency or institution that receives federal funding; this includes, then, nearly all elementary, secondary, and post-secondary institutions in the United States.

Since FERPA was originally enacted, Congress has occasionally amended the law. The overarching purpose of FERPA, however, has continued to be the protection of confidentiality in a student's educational records, as well as the right of a student to inspect those records.

FERPA and Education Records

FERPA protects the education records of an "eligible" student. The term "education records" means records, files, documents, and other materials which contain information directly related to a student, and are maintained by any employee or agent of the University. Records can be: printed, handwritten notes, film, CD's, etc. An "eligible student" is a student who has reached 18 years of age or is attending an institution of postsecondary education.

Exceptions to what is considered an Education Record

These things are not considered to be part of a student's educational record:

- Records that are in the sole possession of the maker. For example, if you keep notes on a student that no one else sees. But if you share these notes with someone, then they become part of the education record.
- Police records for law enforcement purposes.
- Medical records.
- Alumni records.
- Employment records. Note: This depends upon the primary role of the student. If the person is a student first and is also working at the College, then they have one educational record. If the person is an employee who decides to take classes at the College, then they have two records: (1) an employment record, and (2) an education record.

FERPA and "Directory Information"

Under FERPA, each institution designates what it considers as "Directory Information". This is information from student records that can be given out to third parties without a student's consent. This is information not considered harmful or an invasion of privacy if disclosed. If the information being requested is not "Directory Information", then it cannot be given out to third parties without the student's written consent. This also applies in situations where you may be speaking with the student on the phone. Non-Directory Information should not be released to students during a phone conversation due to inability to verify that it is actually the student calling.

What is "Directory Information" at Zane State College?

These items from a student's educational record are considered Directory Information at Zane State College.

1. Name
2. Address
3. Telephone
4. Program of Study
5. Zane State College issued e-mail address

The College also considers honors designation and degrees conferred as part of Directory Information because they are conferred in a public ceremony.

FERPA and the Release of Information

According to FERPA, both parents are entitled to access regardless if they are the custodial parent. And one of the parents has claimed the student as a dependent.

"No Release" of Directory Information

Students have the right to have Directory Information withheld from the public if they so desire. This includes items to be published in the Student Directory. This is known as a "No Release". If a student places a "No Release" on their record, everything must then be done in person so that verification of the person can be completed with photo identification.

Student Rights Under FERPA

Students do not have the right under FERPA to: inspect financial records of parents; letters of recommendation when the student has waived their right of access; and information about other students.

Students have five basic rights under FERPA.

Their first right: Students have a right to inspect and review everything in their record.

Their second right: Students have the right to amend their record if they believe something is inaccurate.

Their third right: Students have the right to consent to the disclosure of all non-directory information. Without a student's written permission, it is a violation of FERPA to release non-directory information to third parties. Students must sign to release non-directory information to third parties. The institution must keep a record of requests and disclosures of non-directory information except when the request is from the student or when the student has given written consent. Written consent to release non-directory information is not required from the student when it involves one of the following situations:

- A College employee with a legitimate educational interest or education related "need to know"
- Other institutions requesting information such as a transcript
- Department of Education, or state/local education authorities
- Connection in the receipt of student financial aid
- State/local officials in conjunction with legislative requirements
- Accrediting organizations, or those conducting studies
- To comply with a judicial order or lawfully issued subpoena
- Health or safety emergency
- Parents of dependent students (IRS definition)

Their fourth and fifth rights: Students have the right to file a complaint with the Department of Education if they believe the College is in violation of FERPA. The College must make their policy on FERPA available to students and provide annual notification to their students regarding their rights.
